A flat is let either under the Civil Code (zákon č. 40/1964 Z. z., §685 and following) or under the Short-Term Flat Lease Act (zákon č. 98/2014 Z. z.). Only the second regime lets the landlord register with the tax office and use its shorter notice periods, so the choice is made before the contract is drafted.

The security deposit is capped at three months' rent under zákon č. 98/2014 Z. z. and is returned with an itemised deduction list after handover.

A repair affecting health or safety — no heating in winter, water ingress, a gas smell — is answered within 24 hours.

Entry for a non-emergency reason needs notice agreed in the contract, in practice 24 to 48 hours.

The handover protocol records meter readings and photographs; without it a deduction is hard to defend.

Rent increases follow the contract, and the landlord declares rental income in the annual tax return.
